CHANGES MADE THROUGH BBOD

“He is doing better with his school work. I was having trouble with him when he was coming home from the boys and girls club. He would say that he was already finished with his homework and then in the morning he would be trying do his homework. Now he comes straight home and does his homework,” she says. “His anger is improving but he still needs to work on it.”

“He has been making better grades. He has gone from making 40’s and 50’s to making two B’s on his latest progress report... you all are really helping him! He has a more positive attitude about things.”

Kizzy Arthur, mother of Malik Goggins

“He is trying to be more responsible. I see the changes in his school work. He is more into his homework each night, and it is beginning to show in class.”

Kevin Mckinney a nine year old fourth grader at Jesse Bobo Elementary School has shown tremendous improvements. When Kevin was in the third grade he was suspended almost every other week for fighting, disrespect and his attitude toward teachers. As a result of his attitudinal and behavioral problems, Kevin’s grades suffered as well. Kevin and his mother were informed that if the school had any more problems out of him, he would be expelled.

Since Kevin enrolled in BBOD in September 2008, we’ve been able to help him with his attitude and behavior. He has not been suspended since he has been in our program. His grades have improved and he has received several of “The Principals’ Finest Bear Bucks”. According to his mother and grandmother, his attitude and interest in school has significantly improved.

Nicholas Drummond

Raisa Drummond, mother of Nicholas Drummond

James Hull, III
